Education Ties Of Peninsulas Get Tightening

The Upper Peninsula Educational Planning Committee met at the new Escanaba Area High School on Thursday evening and on Friday jointly with the Curriculum Planning Committee, a state organization whose work the UPEPC duplicates north of Mackinac.

Dr. Ed Pfau, dean of education at Northern Michigan University, reviewed the activities of the UPEPC for the downstate educational planners. The coordination of the two programs is held very important to Upper Peninsula schooling because there must not be a great difference between curriculum in Upper Peninsula schools and Lower Peninsula schools.

"This is one state," said Dr. Pfau and if we created an insular situation in the Upper Peninsula it would be tragic because kids are so mobile."

Educational activities initiated by or jointly sponsored by the UPEPC include:

School board member workshops in 1961 and 1962, described by Charles Folio, University of Michigan Extension director in the U.P. They were held to acquaint new board members with their work when state law enlarged school boards from 5 to 7 members.

Conferences on guidance. Encouragement of participation in the educational workshops sponsored by the Mott Foundation in Flint schools.

County teacher institutes described by Marquette County school superintendent Vance Hiney. Some counties joined in institutes and used resource teams which crossed the U.P. bringing virtually all U.P. teachers up to date on changes in subject materials, and offering economic education, foreign affairs instruction, etc.

Survey of what happens to Upper Peninsula high school graduates, reported by Ivan Ryan, Gwin vocational leonellor. "Forty per cent of U.P. graduates find employment in Wisconsin, only 10 per cent in Lower Michigan."

Scholarship school at Camp Shaw, Chatham, reported by Rod Smith, U.P. educational director for the Michigan Conservation Department. Each August teachers are offered opportunity to go there for a week of instruction in the teaching of conservation.

Conservation workshops for teachers.

Foreign language workshops for teachers.

Science workshops for teachers under the National Defense Education Act.

Work of a UPEPC subcommittee on improvement of English teaching.

Economic education for teachers. Work with the Michigan College Agreement Program, which defines the working relations between the state's high schools and college so there's no trouble about college admissions.

Work on the new certification of teachers.

Walter Bright, Escanaba Area school superintendent chaired the UPEPC panel which presented the report to the CPC.

U.P. Groups To Receive Honors

Delegations from the control and western Upper Peninsula will be in Detroit Monday to claim plaques denoting that they won two out of three top state awards for the 1963 Michigan Week.

Michigan Week deputy public relations director James Goeb of Marquette says a group of potato producers and county agents will be attending the Detroit Economic Club luncheon to claim the award for the Russet Burbank potato, the state's agricultural product development for the year.

A delegation from Gogebic County will attend to receive their award for GO-INC, an industrial development project that won the community achievement contest. Representing GO-INC will be a Gogebic County delegation headed by Charles L. Santini, chairman of the temporary organization during the fund drive, William L. Johnson, Roy Ahonen, the Rev. Louis Cappel, and G. A. Dahlen.

Potato producers planning to attend Monday's awards luncheon are Paul VanDamme of Marquette, president of the U. P. Potato Producers Association, Edwin Anderson of Metropolitan and Carl Johnson of Foster City, both associated with the Russet Burbank Assn. Also attending will be Willis Owen of Northern Michigan University, regional chairman for the 1963 Michigan Week, Gail Bowers of Stephenson, the region's agriculture committee chairman, Michigan State University's Dickinson County Extension Director Frank McInare, who aided with the potato development, and Gooch.

Over 1,000 of the long, Russet Burbank bakers are to be served at the Economic Club luncheon. Peter Elliott Schurath of Philadelphia, publisher of Holiday Magazine, will be the speaker.

Dr. Berg Heads Mental Clinic

Dr. W. A. Berg of Northern Michigan University Thursday was elected president of the Upper Peninsula Adult Mental Health Clinic in Marquette.

He thus becomes the second president of the clinic, which was opened in 1960, succeeding Dr. Roland Schwitzgoebel of Marquette.

Officers chosen Wednesday: Rev. Norbert Smith, Marquette, vice president; Mrs. Robert Pearce, Marquette, secretary, and Mrs. Morgan Gingrass, Marquette, treasurer.

Robert A. Hanson, acting director of the clinic, reported that 2,020 interviews were conducted by the clinic staff during 1962. New cases during the year included 197 for diagnosis and treatment and 169 for diagnosis only, for a total of 366. One hundred and eighty-nine cases were closed during the year.

Residency of new cases ranged from 186 from Marquette County to one from Mackinac County.

Clinic members adopted a budget of $5,600 for 1964. The treasurer's report showed that $5,400 had been received from counties so far this year, as follows: Alger $250; Baraga, $200; Dickinson, $600; Gogebic, $300; Houghton, $950; Keweenaw, $50; Marquette, $1,450; Ontonagon, $250; Schoolcraft, $250; Menominee, $650, and Iron, $450.

"A bright spot in the look ahead is the coming construction of a $300,000 psychiatric unit at St. Mary's Hospital in Marquette, which will definitely complement the work of our clinic," Dr. Schwitzgoebel said.

"A most difficult problem confronting the Upper Peninsula mental health program is the recruitment and retention of competent staff. To the extent that salary and other benefits are not sufficient to attract and hold qualified people, the entire program will suffer."

The clinic is seeking a replacement for Dr. Joseph S. McCarthy, who resigned as director last March 15, and Wilton K. Duckworth, who resigned as psychiatric social worker last Sept. 1.

Naval Officers In Hole 4 Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-four naval reserve officers have emerged unwashed and unshaved after four days in a hole in the ground.

Only two of them knew what lay ahead when they were locked in a test shelter at the Naval Research Institute in suburban Bethesda, Md., shortly after noon Monday. All were from scientific and technical units.

Nor did they know when they were getting out until the door was flung open Friday. They happily filed out none the worse for wear, but a little the worse for lack of water.

The supply of water was deliberately limited so there was no washing or shaving.

The Navy said this was the first time men of science had been subjected without warning to the rigors of underground isolation simulating those that would be faced in a nuclear war.

Nobody got sick, although Laurence P. Watke, Department of Agriculture biologist at Ames, Iowa, developed a toothache. His cavity was plugged with material from a shelter first aid kit by one of the doctors in the group, surgeon John J. Walsh of Wakefield, R.I.

The Navy boasted that the 34 immediately fell into traditional Navy discipline under command of the senior officer aboard and within 30 minutes divisions were formed and everyone had his job.

Congregational Meet May 21-23

The Michigan Conference of Congregational Christian churches will hold its 121st annual meeting at Peoples Church, East Lansing, May 21-23, with the Rev. Charles W. Scheid, minister of South Congregational Church of Grand Rapids, serving as moderator.

Each of 220 Congregational Churches in the state is entitled to official representation by its minister and one delegate. All officers, trustees and lay members of standing committees of the conference are also entitled to voice and vote during business sessions, so the total voting constituency is 520. There is no limit to the number of non-voting visitors who may attend.

Important constitutional considerations on the business agenda, plus an outstanding program of appearances by nationally prominent clergymen and educators, are expected to attract a record attendance.

Delegates will consider the proposed Consolidation Agreement, constitution and by-laws under which the Michigan Congregational Conference will unite with the 70 churches of the Michigan-Indiana Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church to become the Michigan Conference of the United Church of Christ.

The annual meeting of the Michigan-Indiana Synod will be held, concurrent with the Conference meeting, at St. Paul's Church in Lansing. On the evening of Wednesday, May 22, the two groups will meet in joint sessions beginning with a dinner gathering at the Union Building on the campus of Michigan State University and continuing at a formal worship service at People's Church. The Rev. Dr. Robert T. Fauth, president of Eden Theological Seminary in Webster Groves, Mo., will deliver the annual Conference Sermon at this service.

Centering on the theme: "The Church—A Learning and Witnessing Community," the Conference program will feature two major addresses by the Rev. Dr. John A. Reuling of New York City, general secretary for mission of the United Church Board for World Ministries.

Marjoree Deo Art Wins Praise For Bethesda Show

The Bethesda-Chevy Chase, Md., Tribune lauds the art of Mrs. Robert (Marjoree Nee) Deo, former Escanaban, in a report on her recent show at the Artist's Mart at Georgetown.

"The influence of Karl Knaths—and a splendid one it was—manifested itself in the works of his devoted students and admirers," states the Tribune. "For the most part they have emerged from their own styles, but without losing the benefit of what Knaths had been able to impart with reference to color, form and light. Marjoree Deo's show presents this dramatically."

"Long recognized as a fine colorist, Deo in this show demonstrates a virtuoso range in handling warm through cool to somber palettes with equal success. 'In the warm, joyous category 'Puerto Rico' is especially beautiful. . . . The color in many of the paintings acts as light. . . . Not just color but placement of forms endow all of the paintings with a vibrant sense of movement."

"Many artists who are preoccupied with color lose a sense of form; others, preoccupied with light, lose a sense of color. Deo, most happily, has all three in perfect equilibrium in her work. This is an inspiring show to see."

day, noting that Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt endowed the university with the hope that it would help conciliate North and South following the Civil War.

Sets Off Blast
The university, said Kennedy, has "not only an endowment but an enduring mission of reconciliation."

"Ninety years from now, I have no doubt, Vanderbilt University will still fulfill this mission." As for the TVA, he said this federal program "transformed a parched, depressed and flood-ravaged region into a fertile, productive center of industry, science and agriculture."

One of Kennedy's missions at the Vanderbilt stadium was to push a gold key to set off a dynamite blast and formally start construction of Cordell Hull Dam on the Cumberland River. Said the President:

"We are saluting—by initiating construction of a dam in his name—a great Tennessee statesman, Cordell Hull, the father of reciprocal trade, the grandfather of the United Nations, the secretary of state who presided over the transformation of this country's foreign policy from a state of oblivious isolation, to responsible world leadership."

WANTED!

The desperados listed below are guilty of having improper facial adornments, insulting Centennial officers, improper display of Centennial buttons, avoiding the downtown area on Friday evenings, breathing, failure to purchase Centennial buttons, and insufficient quantity of Centennial spirit. If you see these men or have information regarding their whereabouts on Friday evenings, contact the Centennial Court or the nearest "cop".

Do not attempt to capture these men yourself as they have arms. When apprehended the Centennial outlaws will receive the maximum sentence - Banishment to Menominee County.

HAVE YOU SEEN THESE MEN?

NOTICE!

The Centennial Court regrets to announce that due to the "cops" continuing inability to apprehend the above named fugitives and in view of their extremely serious offenses, the violations of the general public will have to be overlooked this week. No "arrests" or "tricks" involving people visiting the downtown area will be in order except for those found to be aiding and abetting the Centennial Criminals.

No group in the Escanaba Centennial program has been having more fun than the Centennial Cops and their kangaroo court workers, who are pushing the sale of Centennial buttons ($3 buys admission to all centennial events except the Centennial Ball for the whole family). The program is spirited but good humored, a "fun thing," as Centennial Director Harold Cloutier points out. To help the "fun thing" these goodfellows contributed their "villainy" for poster purposes and the cops unable to "catch" them, closed their court Friday night and restricted their activities to button sales to persons who want to help the Centennial celebration.

Spiritual Day To Mark Opening Of Michigan Week

Members of all faiths and denominations in Delta County are invited to join in preparations for the May 19 observance of Spiritual Foundations Day, which for a decade has marked the start of Michigan Week.

The ringing of church bells at 12 noon, followed by a minute of silent prayer, has become a traditional opening of Michigan Week.

"It is fitting that Michigan Week should begin with a Spiritual Foundations Day in which we acknowledge the blessings of God upon our State," said the Rev. Jacob D. Eppinga, pastor of the LaGrave Avenue Christian Reformed Church in Grand Rapids and state chairman for the observance.

He recalled that Dr. Merrill Lenox, director of the Michigan Council of Churches and founder of Spiritual Foundations Day, said "nothing is real until it becomes local."

The Rev. Hugh Michael Beahan, chaplain of Mt. Mercy Academy in Grand Rapids, told leaders of the Catholic faith he hoped "you will be able to share with your people some of the inspiring religious history of our state and help them to an even deeper appreciation of their spiritual heritage in its long religious history."

Dr. Harry Essig, rabbi of Temple Emanuel in Grand Rapids, said the Jewish faith should "be pleased to join with the residents of Michigan in calling attention to the unique assets of our state and in promoting its future growth."

He said services on Friday night and Saturday morning will lend themselves to the Jewish emphasis of the statewide observance "in the same way as Sunday will be the fitting moment for our Christian friends."

Mrs. M. B. Melican of St. Patrick's Parish, Escanaba, said "Our people can be proud of the many men in the story of their Faith in Michigan, not the least of whom would be Father Gabriel Richard, Asst. Pastor of St. Anne's in Detroit. Father Richard published the first paper in Michigan, the first Catholic paper in the United States. His book 'Epistles and Gospels for Sunday' was the first

Papers Of Late Sen. Vandenberg Given To U. Of M.

ANN ARBOR (AP)—The University of Michigan has received the papers of Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican senator from Michigan, from 1928 to 1950.

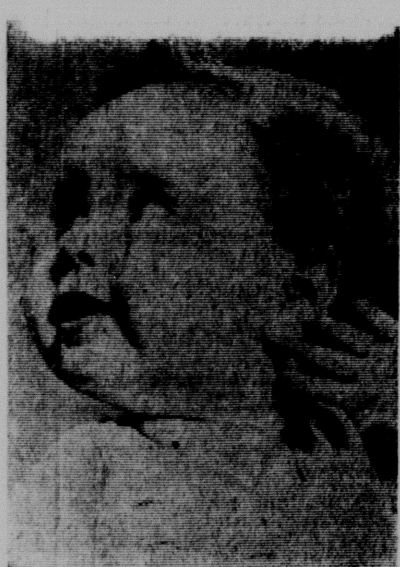

The papers were a gift to the U. of M. Clements Library from Arthur H. Vandenberg Jr., of Miami, Fla., his son. They include 22 scrapbooks of clippings from New York and Washington newspapers on events of the senator's career — along with a running commentary by Vandenberg on many of the events recorded.

Vandenberg, a U-M graduate, left the papers to his children, suggesting that if they wished to deposit them in any library, he favored the Clements Library.
